Course Description

Work is an important determinant of the health and well-being of individuals, households and communities. In this course students will explore the changing work and workforce and their implications for workers' health. They will learn about health and safety regulations and workers' compensation, and about how science, the law and the media shape the recognition of work injuries and illnesses. Throughout, the course will investigate social inequalities in work and health, such as related to gender and racialization. It will also examine collective strategies to protect workers’ health. While the focus will be on Canada, the interrelatedness of health and safety issues at the global scale will be discussed. Empirical, conceptual and methodological dimensions of health and safety will be explored through multidisciplinary, contemporary course materials.

Course Learning Objectives

- To develop an understanding of the health and safety system in Canada, including the rights and the responsibilities of workers and employers.
- To build an awareness of historical and contemporary changes in the world of work and their impacts on occupational hazards and health problems.
- To reflect on how processes at the local and global scales are shaping unequal experiences of work and health.
- To critically evaluate competing arguments about the causes and solutions of health and safety problems.
- To clearly communicate a well-balanced and supported argument orally and in writing.

Required Materials and Texts

- Other readings are available on Avenue to Learn.

Course Evaluation Breakdown

- Short paper 1 (20%) due October 7
- Poster session (25%) due October 21

Late Assignments

Late assignments will be penalized 5% per day, including Saturdays and Sundays. The instructor will permit extensions for exceptional circumstances only, for example when students have followed the requirements to report their absences.

Absences, Missed Work, Illness

http://www.mcmaster.ca/msaf/

On-line self-reporting tool – illness lasting less than 3 days. Can only be used once per term. Instructors are not allowed to accept medical notes! These must be submitted to your Faculty office. In the event of an absence for medical or other reasons, students should review and follow the Academic Regulation in the Undergraduate Calendar “Requests for Relief for Missed Academic Term Work”. Please also communicate with the course instructor.

Avenue to Learn

In this course we will be using Avenue to Learn. Students should be aware that, when they access the electronic components of this course, private information such as first and last names, user names for the McMaster e-mail accounts, and program affiliation may become apparent to all other students in the same course. The available information is dependent on the technology used. Continuation in this course will be deemed consent to this disclosure. If you have any questions or concerns about such disclosure please discuss this with the course instructor.

Academic Dishonesty:

http://www.mcmaster.ca/academicintegrity/students/index.html

Academic dishonesty consists of misrepresentation by deception or by other fraudulent means and can result in serious consequences, e.g. the grade of zero on an assignment, loss of credit with a notation on the transcript (notation reads: "Grade of F assigned for academic dishonesty"), and/or suspension or expulsion from the university.

It is your responsibility to understand what constitutes academic dishonesty. For information on the various kinds of academic dishonesty please refer to the Academic Integrity Policy, specifically Appendix 3, located at http://www.mcmaster.ca/policy/Students-AcademicStudies/AcademicIntegrity.pdf

The following illustrates only three forms of academic dishonesty:
1. Plagiarism, e.g. the submission of work that is not one's own or for which other credit has been obtained.
2. Improper collaboration in group work.
3. Copying or using unauthorized aids in tests and examinations.

Department/University Policies:

Labour Studies staff does not date-stamp assignments, nor do they monitor the submission or return of student papers. All papers for this class should be submitted/returned in-class, unless other arrangements have been made with the instructor.

Code of Conduct:

http://studentaffairs.mcmaster.ca

“McMaster University is a community dedicated to furthering learning, intellectual inquiry, the dissemination of knowledge and personal and professional development. Membership in this community implies acceptance of the principle of mutual respect for the rights, responsibilities, dignity and well-being of others and a readiness to support an environment conducive to the intellectual and personal growth of all who study work and live within it.”

Computer Use:

Computer use in the classroom is intended to facilitate learning in that particular lecture or tutorial. At the discretion of the instructor, students using a computer for any other purpose may be required to turn the computer off for the remainder of the lecture or tutorial.
Course Modifications:
The instructor and university reserve the right to modify elements of the course during the term. The university may change the dates and deadlines for any or all courses in extreme circumstances. If either type of modification becomes necessary, reasonable notice and communication with the students will be given with explanation and the opportunity to comment on changes. It is the responsibility of the student to check their McMaster email and Avenue to Learn (if used by instructor) regularly during the term to note any changes.

Email Communication Policy of the Faculty of Social Sciences:
All e-mail communication sent from students to instructors (including TAs), and from students to staff, must originate from the student’s own McMaster University e-mail account. This policy protects confidentiality and confirms the identity of the student. It is the student’s responsibility to ensure that communication is sent to the university from a McMaster account. If an instructor/TA receives a communication from an alternate address, the instructor may not reply at his or her discretion. Please always include student name, ID, course # and TA name in messages.

Evaluations (Online):
http://evals.mcmaster.ca, and log in via MACID. These help faculty and the School of Labour Studies to meet our goal of continually improving teaching effectiveness. All students in the course are invited and encouraged to complete the evaluation.
